

DANIELA DEFOSSAR, EASA

Senior Policy Coordinator

Daniela Defossar, a German national, has a degree in political science, history and administrative law from the University of Bonn.

She worked for two airlines, starting as trainee in the flight and ground operations department and being responsible for a paperless cockpit project. She then took further responsibilities in the field of regulation matters and development of operating procedures.

She started working for the Agency in 2004 as Rulemaking Officer in continuing airworthiness. She has been involved in the Agency's rulemaking activities on the extension of scope to air operations, pilot licensing and third country operators as well as aerodromes. She then headed the section responsible for the development of the air operations rules.

She subsequently moved on to coordinate horizontal topics, among them the EASA contribution to the 39th ICAO Assembly. She is now working on SMS implementation and assisting ICAO in its work programme dedicated to the strengthening of RSOOs.
