ICAO Aviation Data and Analytics Seminar

The ICAO Aviation Data and Analysis Seminar is a vital platform bringing together regulators, air navigation service providers (ANSPs), aerodrome operators, aircraft operators, international organizations, and industry stakeholders. As the aviation sector evolves, access to timely, accurate, and comprehensive data becomes increasingly critical for decision-making, economic planning, and policy development.

This seminar will provide an unparalleled opportunity for participants to explore cutting-edge tools and technologies developed by ICAO to monitor and assess key air transport trends. Key discussions will focus on the following critical areas:

Aviation Data Needs and Utilization

Understanding the growing importance of reliable data in the aviation sector, from passenger traffic and fleet usage to the performance of flight information regions (FIRs).

Economic Benefits of Aviation

Analyzing how data-driven insights can enhance economic efficiency for airlines, airports, and ANSPs, and their impact on national economies.

Big Data in Aviation

ICAO will present advanced applications in big data analysis that are shaping the future of air transport by improving forecasting, operational efficiency, and competitiveness.

Artificial Intelligence in Aviation

The role of AI in enhancing decision-making processes, predictive analytics, and optimizing aviation operations across the value chain.

The seminar will feature insightful presentations on the latest developments in aviation data analytics, along with panel discussions to address strategic topics such as the integration of information systems, enhancing airline efficiency, and economic planning for airports and ANSPs. The event will provide stakeholders with practical knowledge to harness these innovations for enhanced decision-making and long-term growth in the aviation industry.
