

Mr. Reji John
Editor, The STAT Trade Times

Reji is a journalist with 17 years of experience in writing, reporting, editing and collating content across media – print (magazine & newspaper), television and online and has worked with some of the leading media organizations in India. He has written and reported across subjects and beats.

Reji joined STAT Media Group, a global transport and logistics publishing company with four publications and two international air cargo events (Air Cargo India and Air Cargo Africa), in 2013 to head its editorial department. He leads a team of young writers and reporters who write for both print online versions of The STAT Trade Times (monthly), Indian Transport and Logistics News (once in two months), Logistics Update Africa (once in two months) and ACAAI News (quarterly). He is responsible for all editorial functions at the Group and oversees all content production, including video content.

Reji is also responsible for the content creation and conference planning of the two air cargo events that take place in India and Africa. Recently, he is also been leading a team to create and roll out commodity/sector specific logistics conferences (like for pharma, perishables, auto and automotive and flower) across Africa and India. Under this new initiative logistics conference for the flower industry was launched in 2016 in Nairobi, Kenya. The same will have its second edition later this year at the same city. Similar conferences in India have also been rolled out for pharma and auto & auto components in Pune. Reji has moderated and led panel discussions across all these conferences in Africa and India.
