

Dear Sir and Madam,

After his training at ENAC (French civil aviation academy), Stephane was an air traffic controller at Paris-CDG airport for 15 years, before being in charge of planning and staff management.

Stephane also played a major role in national and European social dialogue. He has held high level elected positions, and, as such, was in charge of conducting various negotiations that led to social agreements with the French government.

He now places his dynamism and his broad experience in management of national and international projects, at the service of a number of diverse multidisciplinary teams.

Since 2011, building on the joint experience of some 11.500 experts from the French DGAC and ENAC, Stephane has, more specifically, been actively involved in supporting civil aviation and safety authorities, and air navigation service providers worldwide to comply with ICAO standard, with the aim to foster efficiency and innovation in their daily operations.

Best Regards.
